What is a true endowment?

Tell Me

1. A true endowment is an endowment fund established by a donor where the gift is held in perpetuity and only income from investments can be spent.

Related FAQs

- Why are three fund numbers used to report an endowment asset?
- What is the difference between University and Foundation Endowments?
- What is a term endowment?
- What is a quasi-endowment?