Info

Use Google Groups to simplify messaging, scheduling and collaboration. A Google Group is like a personal Gmail Contact group but easier to use by more people.

1. There are 2 types of Google Groups
   1. Normal - groups created by request, membership maintained manually
   2. Dynamic - membership maintained by Banner data
      1. Dynamic groups are available for all departments
      2. A few large dynamic groups are also available for use by key people to send to all faculty, staff or students
2. A Google Group contains members that share a common interest e.g. classmates, project teams, or study groups
   1. Emails can be sent to a Google Group
   2. A Google Group can be used for discussion forums arranged by topics
   3. A Google Group can have a collaborative inbox set up
   4. A Google Group can be invited to meetings in Google Calendar
   5. Google Drive files can be shared with a Google Group
3. Each Google Group has a unique e-mail address and contains -group in the username (e.g., username-group@uncc.edu)
4. See this FAQ to learn about logging into a Google Group
