Technology Transfer

UNC Charlotte’s Office of Technology Transfer is one of the country’s best in putting intellectual capital to work. The University leverages its strong tradition of applied research and its progressive stance on licensing to transfer technology to the marketplace. Nested in one of the financial centers of the United States, UNC Charlotte attributes its success in mining and commercializing advanced technologies to community support and its spirit of collaboration. The Office of Technology Transfer’s commitment to economic development has resulted in the formation of companies, jobs and the addition of millions of dollars to the economy.

Search for a Topic of Interest Below

Recommended Articles

- What is a patent?

Browse All Articles

- Do I have to report to the university any patentable inventions that I make as a student or employee?
- How does a copyright come into existence?
- How does the university calculate how much income is shared with inventors?
- How do I contact the Office of Technology Transfer?
- How do I put a material transfer agreement in place?
- How do I report an invention?
- What is a confidentiality agreement?
- What is a copyright?
- What is a material transfer agreement?
- What is a patent?
- When do I need a material transfer agreement?
- Who owns the copyrights on my work?
- Who signs confidentiality agreements?