What's different in the new Gmail interface?

Tell Me

Google has updated the Gmail interface - here are some of the highlights...

- Gmail font was changed from Arial to Sans Serif for easier reading
- Label view can be expanded or collapsed by clicking the top left grid next to the mail icon
- There are 3 new layout options; you can expand or shrink your inbox view - with the Default you'll see a preview of attachments in your inbox
- Easily access your Calendar, Keep, and Tasks right from your inbox
- Organize emails from your inbox - hover over unopened messages and click an icon to archive, delete, or mark as read (or unread), snooze or have Gmail nudge you to reply or follow-up on messages
- Use suggested replies - similar to what is offered in the mobile app
- Contacts is now available in the apps grid top right of browser window

Important dates for the new Gmail interface:

- August 15 - Available to UNC Charlotte in settings, you can revert back to classic Gmail
- September 18 - Default interface changes, you can revert back to classic Gmail
- October 16 - The point of no return
Related FAQs

- What types of Generic Accounts are available for Gmail at UNC Charlotte?
- How can I get removed from the ResearchStudyAnnouncement-group emails?
- What options are available in Google for generic email?
- How do I create a calendar event from an email?
- How do I login to my UNC Charlotte account from Google's login page?