Are you eligible to apply to graduate school?

Tell Me

To be considered for admission to the Graduate School at UNC Charlotte, applicants must complete a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited college or university or its equivalent if not from the United States. Details about admissions requirements are available on the Graduate Admissions website.

Additionally, exceptional UNC Charlotte undergraduate students with at least a 3.2 overall GPA may be considered for early-entry admission to a master's program and begin work toward a graduate degree before completion of the baccalaureate degree. In those programs offering the early-entry option, an applicant may be accepted at any time after completion of 75 or more hours, although it is expected that close to 90 hours will have been earned by the time the first graduate course is taken. These students will have provisional acceptance status, pending the award of the baccalaureate degree. Not all graduate programs offer this option.

Related FAQs

- Are you eligible to apply to graduate school?
- Can I meet with an admissions counselor?
- How do you begin the admissions process?
- What funding opportunities are available to graduate students?
- What graduate programs are available?